FLORENCE, - DECEMBER 17, 1887

Sensible Suggestions.
(Willcox Stockman.)

A meeting of stockmen was recently held at Florence, Arizona, to discuss the most means and methods of organizing the stockmen of Yavapai county into an association for the better protection of their interests. At this meeting a committee was appointed to make a report as to the best course to be pursued to accomplish the results desired. The committee, which was composed of some of the leading and most progressive stockmen of Northern Arizona, made a lengthy report, which was unanimously adopted. The length of the report precludes our publishing it in full, but we copy the following sensible suggestions, which were embodied as a part of the report, and which are as applicable to the stockmen of the other counties of the Territory as to those of Yavapai:

In closing, our report we cannot too earnestly urge upon all stockmen the absolute necessity that at present exists for thorough organization on their part, not only on account of the burdensome laws with which their interests are at present oppressed, but other causes no less injurious to their character. While it is impracticable to portray at length in this report what might be accomplished by thorough organization among stockmen, we would suggest the following prominent subjects on which relief or reform might be had:

First—The repeal of all laws discriminating against the stock interests, and the enactment in their stead of equitable and beneficial measures.

Second—The protection of all stockmen in the enjoyment of vested rights in range and water locations against trespassers—a protection which has been made more necessary by the setting aside of all Territorial quarantine regulations, and the absence of any restrictive laws having for their object the protection of the ranges of the Territory from the tramp herds of other sections.

Third—The better protection of stockmen from the depredations of cattle thieves, by the increased facilities given by organization for the speedy apprehension and conviction of such characters.

Fourth—The adoption of better methods in the handling of cattle during rodeos, with a more equitable distribution of the labor and expense attending the same.

Fifth—The adoption of such means as will secure more uniformity in the matter of "grazing up," by making all stockmen bear equally the burden of providing bulls.

Sixth—The passage of laws that will prevent the introduction of diseased cattle on the ranges of the Territory.

Seventh—The securing of better rates of transportation on cattle en route to the market from the railroads, and also from commission houses and stock yards for handling the same, concessions usually made to co-operative bodies.

Eighth—securing of a more equitable and just basis of taxation on cattle by having the assessments on such property made more in proportion with its actual value, and also securing the repeal of the special tax, which at present is imposed on all capital invested in the same.

The "Parsee Chair."
The "Parsee chair" is announced as the successor of the hammock. A seashore correspondent who has seen one describes it as a sort of box or cradle of mahogany, with a high back and low sides. It is covered with fine rugs and two large, soft pillows worked in rich Turkish embroidery. At each corner the chair is supported by ropes which depend from the roof and which run through hollow pieces of mahogany, making the supports seem like slender and flexible wooden columns. "In the Parsee chair," it seems, "a lady may lounge and swing in the most luxurious of poses and the most picturesque of attitudes, without suffering that curvature of the spine which the hammock entails."—Detroit Free Press.

Affected by the Association.
Each person is in his own company so much of the time that he is liable to be deeply affected by the association. As the French monarch said at last: "I am the state;" so each person in a life the most private becomes by degrees an owner of the world and assumes that the world is he: "I am the summing up of things."—David Swing.
